

EX-KING CHARLES TO MARCH ON BUDAPEST

Overtures Made For Peace With Irish Republic

BELFAST, March 31.—Cardinal Logue, primate of Ireland, was interviewed Tuesday by Sir William Goulding and three other southern Irish Unionists, with the object, it is understood, of securing the opening of peace negotiations between the Irish Republican parliament and the British government.

The interview took place at Dunlack, County Louth.

Sir William Goulding is a prominent Irish railway man, a resident of Dublin. He is chairman of the Great Southern and Western railway of Ireland, and of the Irish Railway Clearing House. He was a member of the Irish convention of 1917-18, and is a former high sheriff of the County of Dublin.

ANOTHER WILSON POLICY ACCEPTED IN ENTIRETY BY HARDING AND CABINET

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1921, by Times Pub. Co.)
WASHINGTON, Mar. 30.—Another policy of the Wilson administration has been swallowed in entirety by the Harding administration, namely support of the banking groups of France, Great Britain, the United States and Japan in their efforts to finance China.

Makes Negotiations Public.

Secretary Charles Evans Hughes has given to the public for the first time the complete record of the negotiations between the four powers. It shows among other things that the Wilson administration reversed itself in its last two years almost completely from the attitude assumed in the days when William Jennings Bryan was secretary of state and when most everything connected with American banking was regarded as suspicious. It will be recalled that the original arrangement between the bankers of Great Britain, Germany, the United States, Russia and Japan fell through largely because the Washington government withdrew the support that had been extended American bankers during the Taft-Knox administration, the argument being that the financial plans interfered seriously with the political and administrative independence of China.

The war, however, changed things completely. Germany was no longer a partner. Japan had obtained through her twenty-one demands upon China certain options requiring China to submit her before making any loans and, furthermore, the United States became the only power able to extend financial aid anywhere. The record of the negotiations is a large volume of notes, memoranda, and diplomatic papers which constitute a chapter on our policy in the Far East and will have an important bearing on the future of China itself.

Financial Matters Cause Friction. Although the agreement serenely avoids political entanglements, it is a fact that most of the political friction in the Far East in the past has arisen out of the competitive interests of the big powers in financial matters. The so-called consortium arrangement whereby the four powers have agreed to pool their interests, enables the opportunity for special privileges and options and makes possible the development of China along lines that do not menace her territorial integrity or independence. Eventually Russia will take into the partnership and the application of Belgian entry into the group has been approved.

Fascinating Story.

It is a fascinating story—this accomplishment of an agreement among all the great powers for the financing of China. And to Thomas J. Watson of J. P. Morgan and Company, goes the credit for the achievement. His financial diplomacy in handling the question

BRITAIN BLAMED FOR DISORDERS IN IRELAND BY COMMITTEE OF 100

SPLENDOR OF CEREMONY, CENTURIES OLD, MARKS BURIAL SERVICE OF CARDINAL GIBBONS, BELOVED PRELATE

Body Of Cardinal Lying In State

CARDINAL GIBBONS' BODY LYING IN STATE IN BALTIMORE CATHEDRAL.

BALTIMORE, MD., March 31.—With all the splendor of a ceremony centuries old, the Roman Catholic church today laid to rest one of its oldest and most faithful servants—James Cardinal Gibbons, archbishop of Baltimore, and the second American to be elevated to the cardinalate.

Archbishop John Bonzano, apostolic delegate at Washington, celebrated a pontifical requiem mass in the cathedral of the Blessed Virgin Mary with seminarians chanting Gregorian music never before heard outside the Sistine Chapel in Rome during the funeral of a pope.

Archbishop John J. Gleeson, of St. Louis, delivered the funeral sermon. During his eulogy of the dead, there remained scarcely a dry eye among his hearers, whose memories went back to the kindly, gentle old man who led with power of spirit as well as power of mind.

The service was like a scene from the middle ages, like an altar piece come to life. Numberless priests in a seemingly endless procession filed into the church and in their stately robes of the varied colors of their orders moved forward to the catafalque on which rested the late cardinal in his archbishop's vestments of purple. In a few moments the body of the church was filled with this army of clergy and the atmosphere of the twentieth century was dispelled.

Valentino pleaded guilty, was sentenced to the penitentiary and immediately started on his way.

There was a harmony of color and sound as the light of the candles around the bier fell on the brilliant ceremonial robes of the priests and the auditorium echoed to the measured rhythm of chanted prayers.

Greatest Assemblage of Church Dignitaries

The greatest assemblage of church dignitaries ever massed on this continent gathered for the funeral of James Cardinal Gibbons.

They came from the east and the west, from the north and the south, and from the dominion across the border, to mourn the prelate, the American, the man. In the great procession which formed for the pontifical requiem mass were numberless priests and the mitred heads of a hundred dioceses.

To the Cathedral of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary, on the heights overlooking the city of the cardinal's birth, came also lay delegates representing Catholic organizations, diplomatic Washington and Americans differing in creed, but united in their love for the dead churchman.

Special Honor From Vatican

They came for a ceremonial unmatched in the ecclesiastical history of the United States, for in addition to all the honors that the Roman Catholic church in America could shower on a servant old and tried, there was bestowed upon the dead a special gift from the vatican. In special recognition of the American prelate's service to the church, the pope decreed that the Gregorian Choral Society of St. Mary's seminary should sing at today's mass a solemn Gregorian chant, previously heard only at the funeral of a sovereign ruler of the Catholic church in the Sistine Chapel in Rome.

By nine o'clock an hour before the time set for the ceremony, streets surrounding the cathedral were so crowded with clergy and laity that not a square inch of pavement could be seen. At ten o'clock the whole city, by gubernatorial and mayoral proclamation, dropped every activity for a minute in respect to a man it had numbered among its most distinguished citizens. Every motor, every street car, every wagon was stopped in its tracks when the clocks of the Sistine Chapel in Rome.

Wore Mourning of Purple

Early in the morning the clergy began forming in front of Calvert Hall College, diagonally opposite the cathedral, for the procession. It was an impressive spectacle. Regular clergy in the colors of their respective orders headed the line and behind them came the secular clergy, followed by the monsignori, Cardinal O'Connell and Beglin, and Archbishop John Bonzano, apostolic delegate and celebrant of the mass. All of the highest church dignitaries were mourning colors of purple.

Body Inside Cathedral

Inside the cathedral under the gilded dome at the foot of the center aisle lay the body of James Cardinal Gibbons, archbishop of Baltimore. He rested on a purple covered catafalque, dressed in his archbishop's robes, wearing on his head his archbishop's mitre and on one finger the ring that WASHINGTON, March 31.—Moral responsibility for the present disorders in Ireland is placed upon the British government by the Commission of the Committee of One Hundred investigating the Irish question in a 30,000-word report made public today and covering the examination of witnesses at public hearings held by the commission in Washington last November, December and January. The report has been issued under the title of "The American Commission on Conditions in Ireland," which announces that it will continue the inquiry. Declaring that the commission was "under the disadvantage of lacking the official British side of the case except as it was gathered from documents presented to it, the report declares that 'the Imperial British army in Ireland has been guilty of proved excesses, not inimical to the British Empire, but still illegal,' due to the Bryce report on Belgian atrocities, to have been committed by the Imperial German army." The Bryce Commission, it is pointed out, was similarly handicapped.

Adults Report Ex Parte.

Thirty-eight witnesses of alleged atrocities including 18 Irish, 18 American and two English citizens, testified before the commission. The commission admits that its report is ex parte in spite of its efforts to hear all sides. The testimony available in the report gives the case, therefore, almost wholly from the Irish republican or Sinn Fein viewpoint or "from sources not unsympathetic to the application of the principle of self-determination to Ireland." The Ulster Unionist viewpoint and that of the British authorities in Ireland, the report says, were not represented among the witnesses.

Irish Depressed Protection.

Summing up its conclusions after hearing all the testimony, the commission finds that the Irish people are deprived of the protection of British law, to which they would be entitled as subjects of the British King. They are likewise denied of "the moral protection granted by international law to which they would be entitled as subjects." They are at the mercy of imperial British forces which, acting contrary both to all law and to standards of human conduct, have instituted in Ireland "a terror, the evidence regarding which seems to prove that."

Unholy Violence By British.

"The Imperial British Government has created and introduced into Ireland a force of at least 75,000 men, many of them youthful and inexperienced, and some of them convicts; and has inflicted that force to unbridled violence.

"2. The Imperial British forces in Ireland have indiscriminately killed innocent men, women and children; have tortured and shot prisoners while in custody, adopted the sufferings of 'refusal to balt' and 'attempting to escape' and have attributed to alleged 'Sinn Fein' Extremists the British assassination of prominent Irish Republicans.

Wanton Destruction By English.

"3. House-burning and wanton destruction of villages and cities by imperial British forces under imperial British officers have been countenanced and ordered by officials of the British government; and elaborate provision by gasoline sprays and bombs has been made in a number of instances for systematic incendiaryism as part of a plan of terrorism."

"4. A campaign for the destruction of the means of existence of the Irish people has been conducted by the bombing of factories, groceries, crops and farm implements and the shooting of farm animals. This campaign is carried on regardless of the political views of their owners and results in widespread and acute suffering among women and children.

Innocents Made To Suffer.

"5. Acting under a series of proclamations issued by the competent military authorities of the Imperial British forces, hostages are carried by forces exposed to the fire of the Republican army; fines are levied upon towns and villages as punishment for alleged offenses of individuals; private property is destroyed in reprisals for acts with which the owners have no connection; and the civilian population is subjected to an inquisition upon the theory that individuals are in possession of information valuable to the military forces of Great Britain. These acts of the Imperial British forces are contrary to the laws of peace or war among modern civilized nations.

Terror Fails To Reestablish Civil Government.

"6. This 'terror' has failed to re-establish Imperial British civil government in Ireland. Throughout the greater part of Ireland British courts have ceased to function; local county and city governments refuse to recognize British authority; and British civil officials fulfill no function of service to the Irish people.

"7. In spite of the British 'terror' the majority of the Irish people have sanctioned it, ballot the Irish Republic, gave their allegiance to it, pay taxes to it; and the decisions of its courts and of its civil officials.

"8. Peoples Should Be Considered."

The commission also declared that the situation in Ireland was a proper subject of concern for all peoples, claiming that "it appealed particularly to Americans so closely bound by ties of blood and culture to the Irish and English people." Unless imperial forces could prevail to the end the terror in Ireland, the commission pointed out, "Imperial forces seemed bound to continue both to deny the possibility of peace in Ireland and to diminish the possibility of non-intervention of our government in the affairs of Ireland."

“PEOPLE MAY BENEFIT BY PROGRAM OF RECREATION AS DID SOLDIERS”

As the soldiers needed and benefitted by Community Service during the war so the people of the United States need and will greatly benefit by results obtained through the efforts of the Community Service, a national organization working here with the Bureau of Community Service and the American Legion, was the chief thought brought before the fair number of Chamber of Commerce members.

bers who attended the weekly luncheon on Thursday noon. The speaker was Toy W. Winton, special representative of the national organization Community Service who will be here about three months to assist in the forming of a leisure-time program. He pointed out that the benefit of such a program does not lie merely in getting under way in a spirit of real cooperation. The method of neighborly cooperation on the matter of recreation and leisure time has the chief value of this work. The chairman of the meeting was Samuel Horowitz. After Mr. Winton's address he was asked many questions by these present.

Mr. Winton spoke of the importance of leisure-time activities as builders of citizenship. He maintained that the tone of national life is set by the kind of leisure-time amusement enjoyed. He showed the dangers of this country becoming a nation of "blethenites," people who have their amusement made for them by others. He said:

"The great empires of the past have disappeared when their citizens have become inarticulate in their leisure time and have had slaves bring them their amusement. The Coliseum at Rome began the breakup of that empire. The Star of Empire has not shone over those peoples that have become sluggish and lazy in hunting their recreation. It has passed on to fresher nations."

He spoke of the strength of the British Empire and pointed the Englishman as one who takes his sport as seriously as his business. He pleaded for a serious consideration of recreation as a national necessity if

Cincinnatians Are Fleeced By Man Who Is Said To Have Lived In Portsmouth

The Enquirer today had the following concerning a man who is said to be known as Thomas Prather, and claiming Portsmouth as his former home:

"Cincinnati and private police are on the trail of a stock salesman who within the last few months, 'cleaned up' approximately $10,000, it is said, by buying up oil stock at a discount, paying for it with alleged worthless bank checks and then selling it to a Cincinnati security dealer. Impetus was given to the search yesterday afternoon when William Alexander, meat dealer, at Winfield and Glenway avenues, told police that the man sought had stolen 200 shares of oil stock certificates, valued at $500, from

"Dr. H. C. Wendel, 18 East McLellan street, said he believed he was making a profit of $400 when he sold

"$1,350 worth of stock of the Invader Oil Company, Oklahoma, to the salesmen who, it is said, is known as Thomas Prather, formerly of Portsmouth, Ohio. Dr. Wendel said he was informed that the check which Prather tendered to him in the deal was found to be of no value. The physician alleged that Prather also had forged his name to a check for $210.

"Alexander immediately obtained a grand larceny warrant for the arrest of Prather, who is said to have an office in Cincinnati. Prather formerly was employed by a stock brokerage firm in Cincinnati, and this concern, it was reported, lost $500 in a deal. Prather learned the names of persons who owned the particular oil stocks when he was employed in a legitimate capacity, it is stated.

"Alexander told police that when he was at his store Prather entered and remarked:

"Did you hear about the oil stock? It has gone up 100 per cent."

"Alexander said he allowed Prather to examine his stock certificates, as he was highly elated over the news. When he was waiting on a customer, he said, Prather seized his certificates, leaped into an automobile and drove away.

"Operatives of the Cal Crim Detective Agency are conducting a search for Prather that may end in an up-state city. A man who is at a downtown hotel, is said to have received a worthless check for $700. An elderly woman, it is reported, lost $500 in a deal. Prather learned the names of persons who owned the particular oil stocks when he was employed in a legitimate capacity, it is stated.

Six Scioto Countians May Be Paroled

Six Scioto county prisoners confined at the Ohio penitentiary, including Floyd Herrick, former prominent steel worker, have been recommended as eligible for parole and notice has been given that their applications will be up for hearing before the Board of Clemency during the month of May.

Herrick was sentenced on May 3, 1920, on his plea of guilty of a charge of larceny in connection with the theft of 60 gallons of whiskey from the home of Jay S. Stevens, Mt. Joy on the night of Jan. 16, 1920. E. R. Norman and William Curley, two others implicated in the theft, were convicted and sentenced to the pen and their case is now pending in the Supreme court on a petition in error filed by the state which is prosecuting error from the decision of the Court of Appeals in reversing the lower court and remanding the case for retrial.

Other Scioto County men who are seeking their release on parole are Ernest Howard, Vanceburg young man sentenced on May 26, 1920, on his plea of guilty to stealing cigarettes and other merchandise from railroad cars while employed as a switchman in the N. & W. yards at East Portsmouth; John Henderson, sentenced on May 3, 1920, for attempting to commit rape; Isaac Church, convicted of a charge of gun toting on May 16, 1919 and Edward Hicks, admitted guilty of a charge of abandoning his legitimate child and was sentenced on May 21, 1920.

Letters From Our Readers

Editor of The Portsmouth Times:

Dear Sir— I am not a minister, nor the wife of a minister, but of a law-abiding citizen, and am as much opposed to the lifting of the lid as are the members of the Ministerial Association. God gave us six days for activities in mercantile lines, but with held one as a day of rest and worship, and He holds us responsible as to how we keep that day. Lift the ban on soft drink places, cigar stands and ice cream parlors and you will soon see the Sunday-base ball in full swing. Teach our young people to disregard God's law and you raise up an army who will disregard the laws of the state. Teach them to obey God's law and you grow law-abiding citizens. I feel sure that these are not only my sentiments but the sentiments of very many wives and mothers in Portsmouth.

Very respectfully,

MRS. J. J. RARDIN.

Death Calls

F. C. Bancroft

Frank C. Bancroft, for many years popular and efficient business manager of the Reds died last night in a Cincinnati hospital. He had long been ill with neuritis.

Mr. Bancroft was prominent in baseball circles for many years and was well known to local fandom. Years ago when he took a flyer into the theatrical field he brought show to this city. It was called "The Spring Chicken" and did such poor business that Mr. Bancroft never forgot his reception here.

We can thus see that each day in Portsmouth there are two hundred and forty thousand leisure hours pouring their wealth of good or evil, of constructive effort or destructive illness into the hopper of community life to become clean wholesome flour from which the bread of healthy social life is made, or to become chaff which is fanned by the winds of discontent and dissension until it breaks out into flame if the torch of lawlessness is applied.

The purpose of Community Service was explained as that of encouraging communities all over the United States to provide clean activities for their leisure hours. Community Service was organized after the war to continue in a broader way the work of War Camp Community Service. Its officers are Joseph Lee, prominent business man of Boston, president; Raymond B. Fossick, former chairman of the Army and Navy Activities, vice-president; Myron T. Herrick, former governor of Ohio, ambassador and presidential aspirant; treasurer, and Howard S. Brancher, a well known recreational worker, secretary. It is a philanthropic organization supported by voluntary contributions from public spirited men and women.

Mr. Winton explained that the assistance offered by Community Service to Portsmouth is an invitation of the Bureau of Community Service and James Dickey post, No. 28, of the American Legion. He said that Portsmouth is at no expense to secure the assistance of his organization. He told what had been done in recreation in other cities, explaining that in Ohio—Cincinnati, Mansfield, Columbus, Urbandale, Delaware, Cambridge, Fostoria and other places have availed themselves of this aid. He made it clear that Community Service does not wish to force any program on Portsmouth but is ready to help Portsmouth in any recreational program it may have.

The water is also over the road leading to the bridge at Lucasville.

Celebrate Sixty-Eighth Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas, parents of Judge James S. Thomas, celebrated their wedding anniversary at their farm home at the old Steam Furnace, near Peebles last Sunday. The unusual feature of the event was that this remarkable pioneer couple had celebrated the event sixty-seven times before, having wedded on Easter Sunday, March 27, 1857, and this is the first time the date has fallen on an Easter Sunday.

It is doubtful if there is another couple in these parts or even in the entire state who have traveled along life's journey so peacefully and happy as this aged pair who despite their advanced years, Mr. Thomas being 89 and his helper 84, are hale and hearty.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas live in the same community in which they were born and reared and six of the eight children born to them are living.

FIRE DESTROYS CHEMICAL PLANT

Fire, which broke out at 7:35 last night, completely destroyed the plant of the Portsmouth Chemical company, which was located about the N. & W. tracks just west of Hempstead hospital in the North End. Considerable valuable machinery was lost in the fire and the loss on it and the two story frame structure may reach $10,000. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

It is believed that tramps, who had forced an entrance to the building were responsible for the fire.

When it was discovered the building was a mass of flames and there was no chance to save it, the firemen fused by three alarms being turned in almost simultaneously and Chief Leedom is making an investigation.

Several times the old slaughter house built by the late Phil Thompson caught on fire, but the flames were quickly extinguished. This building joined the chemical plant from the west.

At one time the flames leaped 50 feet into the air and a monster crowd was attracted to the scene. The automobiles were so thick around Kliney's Lane and the Scioto Trail that Officer

Posey Flowers was pressed into a traffic officer and he kept the cars moving.

The Portsmouth Chemical company, which went out of business four years ago, was organized in 1910 and the plant, which was destroyed last night was built that year by a company headed by Dan Labold and J. W. Winter.

It was stated last night that the heaviest owner in the company is Simon Labold, who is in Chicago. The company did a good business for a short time, but local butchers did not kill enough hogs and cattle to keep it going.

Freight traffic was held up in both directions by the fire and Detectives Reno and Pratt who were on hand to keep the traffic under control.

Passenger train No. 32 due here at 7:50 p. m. from Columbus was held up almost 40 minutes just north of Hempstead hospital, the result of the fire. Two lines of hose were stretched across the tracks and the train was flagged about 200 yards north of the fire. Chief Leedom later ordered the hose cut off long enough to allow the train to proceed when he saw the fire was under control.

Comfort Should be a Supreme Requirement When You Select Your Footwear

For Feet With Bunions or Enlarged Joints

Recognizing the existence of many foot ills, due almost exclusively to the wearing of incorrectly fitted shoes at some time, the designers at the Walk-Over factories are endeavoring to provide a correct last for every foot, so that even those whose troubles cannot be cured can at least have comfort.

WALK-OVER

It has been said that "backache is an invention of the Devil One to try women's souls," but even so, it is more often a symptom of a female trouble which sooner or later declares itself. Day after day it drags a woman down and night after night prevents restful sleep. Such women should follow Mrs. Pitt's advice and try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It contains no narcotic or harmful drugs.

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, trials, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

My Dear Miss Wise—I am a girl of only thirteen years of age, but I have been going with a boy who is fourteen for over a year and I love him very much and I am sure he loves me. One might think that we were just young and foolish but it does not seem like foolishness to me. When he is away he always writes to me and I am sure that he never goes with another girl or ever goes with another girl or he could not seem to love me so. I do not intend to get married till I am at least twenty but I do not see any harm in loving a boy and him loving you even at this age. I am sure he loves me and I love him. Please answer and tell me whether our courtship is foolish or not.

BROWN EYES.

You are privileged to have as many playmates as you care to, but when it comes to courtship, it is ridiculous and your parents should most certainly forbid you seeing him. You have plenty of time for that in years to come, and later when your mind is more settled, you will wonder how you could have been so foolish.

Dear Miss Wise—I am a girl of 13 years of age but look as though I was 16. Now I would like to work after school and earn some money so I could help buy my clothes. I can do almost anything but would like to take care of 1 or 2 children as I need money. I could work after school and Saturday and Sunday. Please, give any one my address that wishes it. I shall be glad to furnish this girl's name to any one. Call 840.

BLUE EYES.

The marriage can be annulled without divorce proceedings if the parents go to the probate judge and swear that the girl was under age and married without parents' consent. I think in some cases that it is the best thing for many girls marry without any forethought.

Dear Dolly—Please print for benefit of widow signing himself "Lonesome" in Tuesday's Times, to state his age and occupation and he may find a lonely widow.

Dear Dolly Wise—Will you please

BILLY WHISKER

FRANCES TREJO MONTGOMERY

Before daylight the next morning many faces turned toward their windows to see if any light streak in the sky betokened a sunny day, but it was too early and as yet only a leaden gray overspread the heavens. An hour later, however, many hearts were glad when they saw a golden ball rise above the horizon and send a flood of light over hill and valley.

Many people were up before sunrise, as country people are, but the glowing sun brought all the late risers out of bed in a hurry, for today was the day of all days, the opening of the fair.

"I have it, I'll get a halter, put it round her neck and then pull her up the plank into the wagon."

They all thought this an excellent plan and sat down to wait until he returned with the halter, while Violet climbed up on the pigsty, where she could have a good view of all that went on, and here is where she sat and laughed until her sides ached, because of all the funny things that happened to Mrs. Piggie when they tried to put her into the wagon.

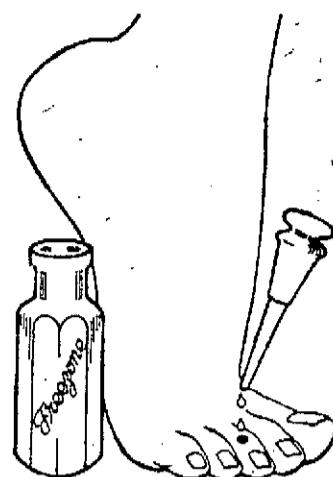

When the man came back with the halter he climbed into the pen and put it around Mistress Piggie's neck, then crept through the door of the pen and tried to get her to follow. But not she, although he tried to coax her by holding an ear of corn within her reach. Corn was no inducement to her now. She had eaten too many bushels already. After coaxing for some time the man got mad and said:

"Come along, you stubborn old thing; you have got to go into the wagon and that, too, pretty quick, or I will be late to the fair!" He gave a jerk at the halter. She pulled back and it slipped through his fingers, landing him on his back in the wagon. This increased his anger at the pig, for it made all the men laugh. He crawled down the plank, caught hold of the halter again, telling one of the men to climb into the pen and push while he pulled. He said he would beat them cigars and lemonade at the fair that they would get her into the wagon now or he would pull her fat head off.

"Tomorrow you'll hear how Mrs. Piggie was finally managed." Copyrighted by the Sunfield Publishing Co., Akron, O.

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Your Manners

It Is Correct

For a woman who has a sewing woman in the day, to provide her with a wholesome luncheon, and allow her a full hour in which to enjoy it.

To let her leave in time for dinner in her own home, or else invite her to remain for the meal.

To say "Good morning" and "Good night" to servants of the household, adding the names by which they are called.

To acknowledge graciously every introduction made to you whether it is pleasing or not.

When in conversation, to wait until the person speaking has finished before taking it up.

It Is Not Correct

At any time to interrupt a speaker. To change the topic of conversation abruptly when the subject has been brought by another and is merely displeasing to you alone.

To walk away abruptly while someone is talking to you.

To persist in talking on a subject that is plainly distasteful to a listener. For a man to whistle to attract a woman's attention, no matter how well he knows her.

Too Late
For Funeral

Delayed by a train wreck near St. Louis, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Lair, of Moberly, Mo., did not reach Portsmouth until Wednesday night, too late to attend the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Rachel Dodds, who died Sunday night at her home at The Corners, near Minford. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. Lair is an old Scioto county boy having been reared by the Boyer family at Wau's Station. He left this section forty years ago when yet a young man, going west and settling at Moberly, Mo., where he has prospered. This is his first trip back to the old home since leaving and he and his wife will spend several days visiting his nephew, A. H. Dodds, Gallia street grocer, and other relatives here.

called meeting of the Association to be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock, at the First Christian church, at which meeting the ministers will consider further the Sunday closing matter.

Some definite action on the Sunday closing matter by the Ministerial Association is expected to be taken at this meeting, when the ministers will report on actions taken by their members at Wednesday night services.

At the special meeting of ministers held at the office of District M. E. Superintendent Rev. J. B. Hawk, Wednesday afternoon, it was decided to put the matter before the members at midweek services last night. The matter was brought up at the services last night and the resolutions adopted by the various churches were as follows:

Uananimously Passed

Hon. William N. Gableman, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Sir:

At a regular meeting of the Official Boards of the Central Presbyterian Church the following resolution was passed:

That whereas our City has been enjoying the blessed privileges of a law abiding community, and

Whereas the Honorable Mayor of our City has performed without fear the obligations of his office,

Therefore, be it Resolved that we extend to the Honorable Mayor and his assistants our sincere request that they continue the present Sunday Closing Orders and preserve our Lord's Day on the present basis.

Respectfully submitted by

The Combined Official Boards of the Central Presbyterian Church.

Many Adopt It

The following resolution was adopted by the people of Manly M. E. Church, assembled for the mid-week prayer service on Wednesday evening:

We heartily commend the mayor of Portsmouth, William N. Gableman, for issuing and enforcing the Sunday closing order.

We earnestly recommend and urge that the order continue in force and that all violations of the same be prosecuted. Signed:

P. C. WOLF, Pastor.

Pass Resolution

That whereas, the city of Portsmouth has for sometime witnessed the good effects and results of the Sunday closing order, and

Whereas, certain business interests are urging a tilting of the lid and wanting an open Sunday,

BE IT RESOLVED, that we, the members of the Grandview church of Christ assembled at regular prayer services, render our protest against any tilting of the lid, and request that our city officials see to it that there be no tilting in the future thus far. We regret that New Boston, Lucasville and others have not had the same order and urge and request our county officials to issue an order to that effect.

REV. O. H. GAST.

Comment Mayor

Inasmuch as some of the business men, interested in commercializing the Lord's Day by opening their places of business in violation of the State Law, have had a resolution published requesting the Mayor to "tilt the lid."

It is Resolved: That we, the members of the First Christian Church, in meeting assembled, command the Mayor to close all places of business in the past few months.

That we urge the Mayor to continue the closing order, and pledge him our support in all Law enforcement.

E. G. WILLIAMS, Chairman, C. C. BROCK, Secretary, CLAS. R. OAKLEY, Pastor.

Resolution on Sunday Closing

Resolved that we, the attendants at the mid-week service at Franklin Avenue M. E. Church on March 30, 1921, most heartily approve the enforcement of present Sunday laws in the city of Portsmouth and that we request that no change in the observance thereof be permitted.

(Signed) Chas. E. Severinghaus, Pastor.

Jno. W. Bickham, Secy.

March 30, 1921.

Second Presbyterians Protest

Dr. Horst being out of the city for this week, the Second Presbyterian church held its regular mid-week meeting with Mr. Leedom as leader.

The following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That it is the sentiment of this meeting that we endorse the Sunday closing of the City of Portsmouth and request the honored mayor to continue the same."

W. L. LEEDOM, Chairman.

Resolutions of Immanuel Baptist Church of New Boston

Resolved, by the members and congregation of the Immanuel Baptist church assembled at the regular prayer meeting service on Wednesday evening, March 30, 1921, that we approve the closing of houses of business as now in force in Portsmouth, Ohio, and that we do not favor any tilting of the lid.

Further, we regret that present conditions obtain in New Boston and hope to see them changed for the better.

ROBERT ALLBAUGH, Pastor.

F. E. COOPER, Clerk.

Favor Sunday Closing

We, the members of the Berean Baptist church of Sciotoville in special business session assembled, go on record in favor of continuing the Sunday closing law. We, therefore, petition the honorable mayor of Portsmouth to continue in force indefinitely the present Sunday closing order especially in that part of Portsmouth known as Sciotoville.

Done by order of the church, March 30, 1921.

W. H. OVERSTREET, Pastor.

J. A. BROCK, Clerk.

Bigelow Against It

Editor Portsmouth Times.

Dear Sir: Relative to the continued enforcement of the Sunday closing law. Discussion brings forth the following as the thought of those present at the mid-week prayer meeting, which I believe would be the statement of the entire membership and constituency of Bigelow church:

Resolved, that we heartily command the action of Mayor Gableman in his insistence upon local compliance with the law of the state in keeping closed on Sunday places of business. Said law embracing as it does the right of the employed to be freed from the daily task on Sunday a right recognition of the value of church and home life, and a very necessary check to the efforts of those who would force upon us the demoralizing influence of a wide open Sunday.

Signed for the congregation.

C. E. CHANDLER, Pastor.

Opposed To It

The congregation of Calvary Baptist church, at a meeting last night, opposed any changes being made in the present Sunday closing law. A resolution to this effect was unanimously passed and signed by the pastor, Rev. L. N. Kuyser.

To Oppose Any Change

To The Honorable Mayor and Citizens of Portsmouth.

Be it known unto you that we, the members of the First Baptist Church, assembled March 30th, 1921, unanimously voted to strenuously oppose any change in the present closing system on the Lord's Day, and demand that the laws of our state and municipality concerning Sunday observance be enforced.

GEO. R. CARSON, Clerk.

H. STEWART TILLIS, Pastor.

700 Years Spent In Trying To Pacify Ireland

In touching upon the events leading to the present crisis, the report declares: "That central fact in the Irish situation is the presence of the British in Ireland, and to 700 years spent in trying to pacify Ireland, and the British naturally desire to continue to possess Ireland, for they are proud of their empire, jealous of its integrity, and anxious about its security."

The report points out that the Irish, as a result of their resort to arms in 1783, 1798, 1803, 1848 and 1867, have won from the British Parliament the abolition of penal laws against the man Catholics. Disestablishment of the Irish Church, Liberal Land Law, and, finally, the Irish Home Rule Act which was passed by the House of Lords and Commons and signed by the King in 1914. "At the hands of the British Tories, under Sir Edward Carson," the report says, "that act was suspended for the duration of the war and was later rendered void by a suspending act which partitioned Ireland."

Rebels Are Forgiven

"It seems to us," says the commission, "that we could best serve the cause of peace by placing before the English, Irish and American public the facts of the situation, free from both agonized exaggeration and moral understatement; for a knowledge of the facts might reveal their cause and recognition of that cause might permit its cure, by those whose purpose was not to stay but to heal."

was started by Tories to fight Home Rule, charged that Carson and other leaders who had imported arms from Germany and had set up a provisional government in Belfast were traitors and promoted to high offices in the British government.

"After this," the report says, "in 1916, Irish poets, teachers and leaders, with less than 1,000 followers, rose in rebellion and declared Ireland's independence. Confronted with the Irish declaration of independence, the imperial British government poured additional troops into Ireland. The rebellion was crushed in April 1916. The Imperial British government then continued to pour troops into Ireland. The Irish to an increasing degree were deprived of civil and social liberty. Such British rule lasted until Dec. 14, 1918, when, at the conclusion of a war, it was fought for the rights of small nations, the Irish people in the general election held under British auspices, gave the endorsement of their suffrage to the Irish republican which was the election issue in Ireland. In fulfillment of their pledge, the elected representatives of the Irish republicans in Congress (the Dail Eireann) at Dublin, organized as a government, nominated officers and proceeded to function (Jan. 21, 1919), and an army known as the Irish Republican Army was created, equipped with distinctive uniforms and drilled openly."

Mrs. Jane Curran, Dola, W. Va., R. 1, writes: "I suffered with stomach trouble for twenty years and could never drink cold water or eat anything. I took two bottles of Marlin's and now can drink and eat anything. I had tried all kinds of medicine and physicians told me it was no good. Marlin's has done me more good than anything I ever took."

You can be free from headaches, sour acid stomach, gas, flatulence, bloating, heart palpitation, loss of appetite, nervousness and other distress you usually suffer, no matter how severe or stubborn it may be, when you fail to benefit by just one bottle of concentrated liquid MARLIN. Prepare and use it as directed. Then watch the results. Your distress after eating will cease; your appetite will return and your stomach is strengthened to normal condition. Editions of 16, 32, 64, 128, 256, 512. Get it and take it before your next meal. MARLIN is only 75 cents and absolutely guaranteed by The Marlin Co., Fort Wayne, Ind., and its agents.

Only Few Get Inside.

Only a small part of the thousands who sought entry to the cathedral were able to pass under the great portico, with its tall columns draped in purple and black. Most of the space was allotted to the clergy and admittance was by ticket only. But this did not shake the great array of mourners in their hope of attending the mass or at least massed around the great stonemile, of catching the strains of church music that might be wafted to them.

Disappointment staring them in the face, they stood their ground with the same determination that had been displayed by the tens of thousands who yesterday pressed their way into the church to view the body of their devoted leader.

Varied Flock Sought To Minster Him

As varied as the flock the cardinal had ushered in life was the flock that sought to minister to him in death. Men, women, the little children he loved, stood in the surrounding the cathedral. Some had come in motor, some had travelled by street car, some had walked long distances, but all had come for the same purpose—to show reverence to the man they all had loved.

Today really held two ceremonies. One was the great church assembly at mass—the church bestowing her honors on one who long had served her faithfully. The other was the simple burial service in the crypt of white marble under the cathedral sanctuary—the relatives and closest friends taking that leave of one very dear to them.

Cardinal Gibbons is the seventh soldier of the church to be buried in this vault and to him was allotted a place on the north side. The last time the crypt was opened was in 1872, when Archbishop Spaulding was buried there.

The Miser Has The Wrong Idea

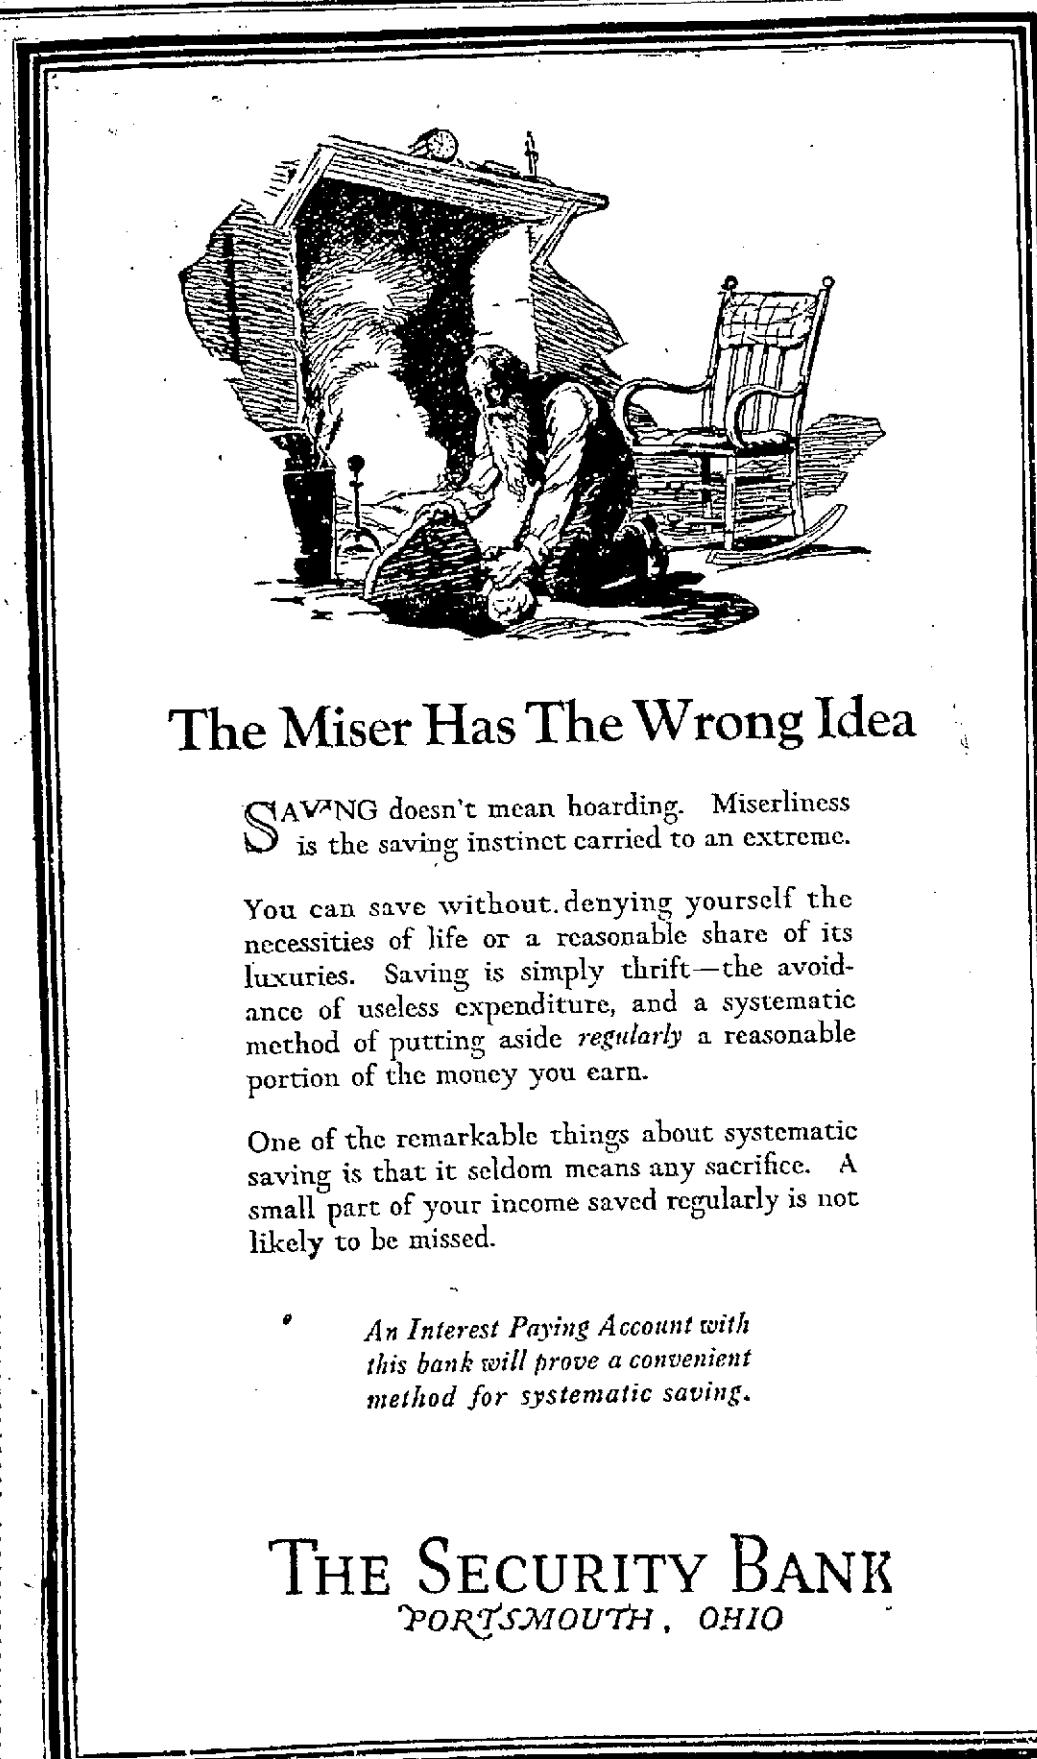

SAVING doesn't mean hoarding. Miserliness is the saving instinct carried to an extreme.

You can save without denying yourself the necessities of life or a reasonable share of its luxuries. Saving is simply thrift—the avoidance of useless expenditure, and a systematic method of putting aside regularly a reasonable portion of the money you earn.

One of the remarkable things about systematic saving is that it seldom means any sacrifice. A small part of your income saved regularly is not likely to be missed.

An Interest Paying Account with this bank will prove a convenient method for systematic saving.

SPRING IS COMING - TAKE GODE'S PEPTO-MANGAN

Thousands of People Take It Every Spring to Regain Health and Fight Illness

MAKES BLOOD RICH AND RED

Helps to Build Up the Entire Human System with Life-Giving Oxygen

In the Springtime, after a winter sickness or long days pent up indoors the blood becomes clogged with waste matter. The little red corpuscles in your blood become inferior.

They do not absorb enough oxygen when they pass through the lungs. The tiny cells, billions of them, miss the nourishing effect of the oxygen, and faces become pale, bodies weak.

If you feel out of sorts, cranky, tired out most of the time, it is probably because your blood is weak. If you have no other disease pulling you down, you can be pretty sure your blood is weak and you need the help that Gude's Pepto-Mangan, the well known Spring blood tonic, gives.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan makes rich red blood and puts new life into the red corpuscles. If you are anemic (a thin-blooded condition) Gude's Pepto-Mangan will restore the right number of red corpuscles. You will notice a general improvement, better appetite, more restful sleep, better complexion, wide-open, clear eyes.

Get Gude's Pepto-Mangan at your druggist's. He has it in liquid and tablet form. It makes no difference which you take, because the tablets and the liquid form both have the same medicinal value. Get the genuine Gude's Pepto-Mangan, with the full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," printed on the package.—Advertisement.

U. S. Developing A Surplus Of Milk

WASHINGTON, March 31.—The United States is developing a surplus of milk for the first time since the beginning of the world war, the department of agriculture reported today in urging its increased use in human food and in producing districts as feed for livestock. The situation is chiefly due, it was asserted, to a decrease in the manufacture of condensed and other milk products for export.

SOUR STOMACH INDIGESTION

Theodore's Black-Draught Highly Recommended by a Tennessee Grocer for Troubles Resulting from Torpid Liver.

East Nashville, Tenn.—The efficacy of Theodore's Black-Draught, the genuine, herb, liver medicine, is vouched for by Mr. W. N. Parsons, a grocer of this city. "It is without doubt the best liver medicine, and I don't believe I could get along without it. I take it for sour stomach, headache, bad liver, indigestion, and all other troubles that are the result of a torpid liver."

"I have known and used it for years, and can do highly recommend it to every one. I won't go to bed without it in the house. It will do all it claims to do. I can't say enough for it."

Many other men and women throughout the country have found Black-Draught just as Mr. Parsons describes—valuable in regulating the liver to its normal functions, and in cleansing the bowels of impurities.

Theodore's Black-Draught liver medicine is the original and only genuine. Accept no imitations or substitutes. Always ask for Theodore's.

Hobart Bosworth, the Sea Dog.

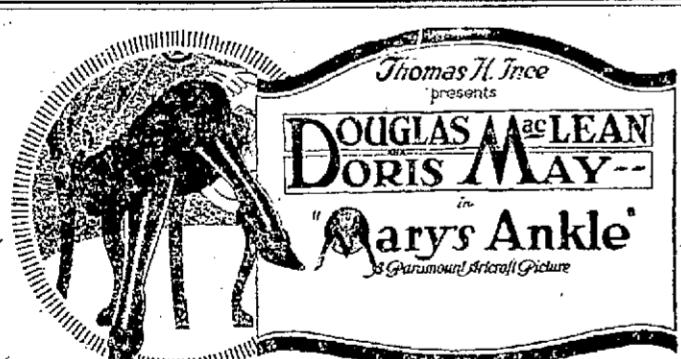

Hobart Bosworth, the Cow-puncher.

Hobart Bosworth, the Two-Fisted.

These three Hobart Bosworths are famous to the public. But yesterday at the Eastland Theatre we saw a still different Hobart Bosworth in his first Associated Producers vehicle made by J. Parker Read, Jr. It is called "A Thousand To One" and in it we see big, virile, likeable Hobart as a waster, a dilettante, if you please—in short, a rascal.

Hobart Bosworth as a roister—But it isn't for long, folks—this characterization exists only for about two weeks when a terrific train wreck brings this episode in a star's screen life to an end and out of the wreckage emerges the new man. From this point onward the story becomes absorbing. The character development is superb, adding further laurels to Bosworth's illustrious crown. The production is as faultless as we have ever seen in an outdoor production and there are some interludes that make us wish to see more of brawny Hobart Bosworth in dress clothes "putting on the dog."

Ethel Grey Terry plays opposite the star and gives a capable performance as the girl who has been tricked into marriage for the sake of her fortune, but who ultimately finds love and happiness in the arms of the star. Which you all will agree is eminently proper and satisfactory.

Synopsis

Bob Bellamy is a genial and altogether likable young man who has not taken the trouble to think of making his own way in the world, his father being a wealthy ship owner.

James Bellamy allows his son $200 a month and is inclined to let him play for awhile after being graduated from the university. When Bob runs up $2,000 in bills, however, besides spending the allowance, the elder Bellamy calls a halt, stops the allowance and sends Bob to sea as supercargo on the steamer Alexander at $50 a month, telling he must pay the $5,000 before he can have any further consideration. "Home Brew" Hanson, chief mate, somewhat intoxicated, finds a cat on a garden wall and brings it aboard. The youngster who owned the cat had snapp'd his mother.

er's new $30,000 bracelet about its neck, and $5,000 reward is offered for its return. Bob wins the cat from "Home Brew" in a cribbage game. After wild adventures in Mexico, in the course of which he wins and carries away a beautiful bride, Bob returns, claims the reward for the bracelet and re-establishes himself in his father's good graces.

"Really Good" Vaudeville

Patrons of the Sun Theater have been agreeably surprised this week by the class of the entertainment that has been offered there. If the opening bill is any criterion, Myers Brothers & Co., the new managers, will undoubtedly enjoy a fine patronage as soon as the public in general realizes that really good vaudeville is being offered.

Letters From Our Readers

Editor Times—Can you not imagine how the devil is chuckling because of his many mouth-pieces at the Chamber of Commerce meeting, where the advisability of doing away with Sunday Blue Law was discussed? We are very sure the sentiment there expressed is not that of the Holy Spirit; so it must be the other. Self is the key-note of the world.

Dear Sir: A letter appeared in yesterday's Times, signed by Mr. and Mrs. Hockley, which contained so many errors and misstatements that I must request some of your valuable space to present the real facts to the public.

The letter states that a nurse of the Bureau of Community Service dragged a sick boy out of his bed and down to the Juvenile court, and shut him up in a cold room for several hours. This is entirely false. No nurse of the Bureau ever has done such a thing, nor ever will. If any nurse of the Community Service should do such a thing, her connection with the Bureau would be short indeed.

The Juvenile Worker of the Bureau of Community Service, who is also a Probation Officer of the Juvenile court, had her attention called to the fact that the Hockley boy might be able to give some information in regard to the robbery of Vaughn's grocery.

She called at his home at nine o'clock in the morning (not at night but in the morning) and asked Mrs. Hockley if she might see him. His mother replied that he was still in bed, but she would call him. The Probation Officer asked if he was sick.

His mother said "No," but that he was not in school that morning, though he had been out on Monday, because the doctor has put some black ointment on one side of his face.

The boy got up, dressed, and came out, and she took him across the street to her own home, and asked him what he knew about the Vaughn's robbery.

After hearing what he had to say, she felt it her duty to take him before the Juvenile judge, to repeat what he had said, and the judge, after hearing what he had to say, detained him in custody.

If any nurse of the Community Service should do such a thing, her connection with the Bureau would be short indeed.

The Juvenile Worker of the Bureau of Community Service, who is also a Probation Officer of the Juvenile court, had her attention called to the fact that the Hockley boy might be able to give some information in regard to the robbery of Vaughn's grocery.

She called at his home at nine o'clock in the morning (not at night but in the morning) and asked Mrs. Hockley if she might see him. His mother replied that he was still in bed, but she would call him. The Probation Officer asked if he was sick.

His mother said "No," but that he was not in school that morning, though he had been out on Monday, because the doctor has put some black ointment on one side of his face.

The boy got up, dressed, and came out, and she took him across the street to her own home, and asked him what he knew about the Vaughn's robbery.

After hearing what he had to say, she felt it her duty to take him before the Juvenile judge, to repeat what he had said, and the judge, after hearing what he had to say, detained him in custody.

Dear Sir: A letter appeared in yesterday's Times, signed by Mr. and Mrs. Hockley, which contained so many errors and misstatements that I must request some of your valuable space to present the real facts to the public.

The letter states that a nurse of the Bureau of Community Service dragged a sick boy out of his bed and down to the Juvenile court, and shut him up in a cold room for several hours. This is entirely false. No nurse of the Bureau ever has done such a thing, nor ever will. If any nurse of the Community Service should do such a thing, her connection with the Bureau would be short indeed.

Deception Island is one of the South Shetland Islands in the Antarctic ocean.

The cone of which rises about 1,800 feet above sea level. On the south-east side the cone wall is broken by an opening about 600 feet wide, through which the sea has flooded the crater, forming a lake harbor, called Port Foster.

It is approximately circular, about five miles in diameter and about 570 feet deep.

FOR CAMPAIGN CONSUMPTION

AS Mr. David Lawrence, who, from his present location in Washington records from day to day the apparent trend of the Harding régime, says, so far as conditions have developed, the present administration is adopting a course quite in all things, and particularly so in foreign relations, identical with that of the one just passed.

Mr. Wilson was not such an ogre as he was painted and President Harding pays him the sincerest flattery, that of imitation; neither could the Democratic officials have been such dandies and incompetents after all, as in the main their general methods are unqualifiedly approved, and most of the chiefs are being sought to remain, instead of being incontinentally fired as was the pre-election promise.

Variation of the foreign relations only accentuates the similarity of the two administrations. Take for instance the two situations thereof that most vex and least alarm, the Russian and the Mexican. The Harding state department appears to be a trifle more definite and exacting with the European country, while it is just a bit more uncertain and less arbitrary with Mexico.

There is nothing particularly surprising, nor altogether unusual in this. American politics consists mainly in finding fault with what the other side does. There was the same unpleasant situation with Mexico under both Taft and Roosevelt that exists today, even more acute in fact, and doubtless some Democrats could have been heard from 1907 to 1912, envoicing heatedly against the Republican course thereto, and promising a change when Wilson got in, but there wasn't.

It isn't because partisans are either insincere or dishonest that we have such things, but because politicians use them as campaign material without thought, and then when victory brings them the responsibility of dealing with them they have got to face them and all the circumstances and that changes the view. Yes, it is the way of politics, accentuated by a distinctive American trend to inconsiderate and violent judgment. How often, for instance, do we hear the hasty expression: "He ought to be hung," and yet how seldom is there a death sentence against a criminal, though scores are on trial every day for the most heinous crimes.

Essentially there is no difference between the component elements of parties, differences are mostly fictitious. Generally they are assumed in the hope that they will lead to some gain in strength. If the average American were so constituted that he were less prone to follow self-chosen leaders and more put to calmly considering matters for himself, based on a measure of desire to inform himself thereon, it would be more clearly understood that elections are mainly to stay in and get in where the offices are.

In Nevada they now propose to execute condemned murderers by asphyxiating them as they sleep. But surely they will give the condemned man notice of the time he may expect to wake up dead.

Hard times seem like a joke when it is figured up that more than a hundred automobiles have been sold in this city since the first of January. In the flush times of twenty years ago if that many carriages and buggies had been sold in a year it would have been halleluah in The Times' biggest type.

Power From House Faucet. Tree Crows from Rock.
The power supplied by the water from a house faucet is sufficient to drive a small dynamo by means of a new motor of about one-half horse power, recently developed by a French scientist and inventor. In his city home the motor installation is permanently attached to the tap, and power is generated every time water is drawn for any of the myriad household purposes. Surplus energy, generated during the day is stored in a battery and later drawn upon to supply 20 incandescent bulbs of 15 to 20 candle power, say Popular Mechanics Magazine.

POLLY AND HER PALS

ARMING OUR CRIMINALS

By Frederic J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 31—Any man who feels moved to destroy will soon be able, in the good old American fashion, to get all the dynamite, nitro-glycerine and other high explosives that he wants. Soon children will again play with sticks of giant powder, which they have picked up around rock quarries, convicts at work on the road will conceal explosives with which to resume the merry business of cracking safes when they are released, morons and idiots will easily steal all the dynamite they want with which to make bombs for blowing up cabinet offices and government buildings.

This is not pure prophecy. All of the conditions mentioned in the paragraph above were found to exist by the Bureau of Mines when they first undertook the administration of the Federal Explosives Act in 1917. At that time the United States was literally popping like a bunch of firecrackers. Minature factories and bridges were blown up with astonishing ease and regularity. A cabinet officer's house was wrecked when a portion of the Capitol building went up in the air. It was evident that not only were astute enemy aliens able to get and use high explosives, but persons of the poorest means and intelligence and of evidently unsound mind had the same advantage.

All of this led to the passage of the Federal Explosives Act, which was administered by the Bureau of Mines. It greatly reduced the damage by high explosives, both accidental and deliberately criminal, and it rendered a copious amount of regard to their distribution and use such as finds parallel in no other civilized country. Few states had any adequate laws governing either the sale or use of explosives and there was no Federal law on the subject except a ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission with regard to their interstate shipment. As a result, dynamite and other high explosives were bought and sold like groceries, stored anyhow and by anybody, caused enormous numbers of accidents, and were widely and picturesquely used in crime.

Law Expires. To this same condition we are now about to return in less congress does nothing about it. For the Federal Explosives Act was a war measure. It technically remains in force until the declaration of peace, or until the funds for its administration are exhausted. This point has now been reached. Unless congress acts promptly, we now return to the regime under which any one can blow up anything or anybody, any time. Indeed, to a great extent we have already returned to it. A few weeks ago in Maryland, two farm hands had a quarrel. One of them went to a general store, stole a large quantity of dynamite out of a warehouse and blew up the home of his enemy, killing a man and a boy and badly injuring a woman. The shock was felt for eight miles. The man who did the work was considered to be of unsound mind. Yet he had easy access to sudden death, and destruction in enormous quantities.

The Bureau of Mines is asking congress to pass a law which will continue the administration of high explosives in its hands. It stands on the facts as to the need for such regulation as revealed by the conditions found in 1917, and upon its own success in administering the war time act. It also points out that during the war many thousands of men became familiar with explosives who would never before have thought of using them. Perilous also are the facts that there is much unrest in the country and an unusual amount of crime.

The Bureau of Mines suggests as a peace time explosives law, an act of congress empowering it and giving it the funds to investigate all explosives whether accidental or of criminal origin "to the end that preventions may be taken to prevent such explosions." In the event that there is evidence of criminal work the Bureau is to report its findings to the proper state or federal authorities.

The problem is complicated by the fact that explosives are widely used in industry. Half a billion pounds of high explosives are used in the United States every year for domestic purposes other than war. This doubtless includes the powders used in sporting ammunition, but all the rest is industrial explosives. This includes dynamite and giant powder used in blasting roads, in many kinds of mining, in nearly all quarrying, in deep mining channels, and in agriculture, for removing stumps, rocks and the like. High explosives are highly concentrated energy of the greatest value when rightly used. The problem is to regulate their manufacture, sale and storage in such a way that their legitimate use will not be interfered with or made expensive, while risk of accident and of their use in criminal activities is minimized. Careless storage.

It seems evident that neither can be wholly avoided, but at least such flagrant carelessness as existed before the war can be avoided. The enforcement agents found high explosives stored in all sorts of sheds and warehouses. Many magazines of the better class were easily enough for criminals to enter, being locked only with padlocks. In many cases dynamite was not locked at all. One boy eight years old blew himself to pieces with a stick of dynamite which he took from an unlocked shed in a stone quarry. Another one put his eyes out with a detonator which he took from a workman's tool box.

We have always supplied our criminals abundantly with high explosives and the damage that they have done with them is enormous. For instance, in certain southern states, recently there was much resentment on the part of a certain element of the population against regulations made by the Department of Agriculture making it compulsory to dip cattle in order to rid them of ticks. This lawless element began blowing up the dipping vats. In 47 days 72 dipping vats were destroyed in one state. The honest farmers had to arm themselves and take the field. This little war, which attracted wide attention, was made possible largely by the fact that the criminals could easily get all the dynamite they wanted.

The prevalence of bomb outrages is well known. But it would appear that much less damage is ordinarily done by the cranks who try to bomb officials and public buildings than by professional criminals and by spite workers like the southern vat blowers, who are seldom heard of. It is striking that of all the terrible bomb plots which were rumored or exposed during the war, having for their purpose the destruction of high officials, not one succeeded. The attempt on Palmer, which resulted in the death of the bomber, was the nearest thing to a success. When arrested, these alleged anarchists are nearly always found to be feeble-minded or insane persons. But it is a sufficient commentary on our control of explosives that the feeble minded and the insane find them easy to get.

Safe-blowing, which is one of the most remunerative lines of professional crime, is absolutely dependent upon a supply of high explosives. The criminal never seems to lack this material. The investigators found that convicts working on roads were allowed to use dynamite in such a way that they could conceal supplies for future use with ease. A tramp reported that he could learn at any water tank where to get a supply of dynamite. All the gentry of the underworld keep themselves well supplied with high explosives.

Fixing Hubby To Make Sure. They Get You Anyway.

"I saw the cutest little hat this afternoon."

"Did you buy it?"

"Not yet. I've got to pick out a more expensive one for my husband to refuse to buy so I can compromise on this one."

Right There.

"I see where Officer Murph made fourteen arrests last month."

"So that always told you Murph was there in a pinch."

A Fast Town.

"Well, I'll tell you," said a citizen of Sandy Mush, Ark., in reply to the inquiry of a neighbor. "I was over to Cattawampus yesterday, and, inside of two hours there were three fights, two runways, a fire, a lady horse-whipping a gent for something or other, and a couple of airplanes sailing over the town. And trying to get into the fights, keep out of the runways, run to the fire, watch the lady and keep my eyes fixed on the airplanes, I got knocked over four or five times and trampled on considerably, and I don't reckon my neck will work prettily right till the Lord knows when. How them folks in town manage to keep healthy with all that hoo-ray going on amongst 'em is more than I can figure out. Bushing, if two of them that fast living didn't mighty high ruin me!"

Trained Birds Versus Wild Ones.

An English gamekeeper writes he knew at one time a rather remarkable man who was an incorrigible poacher.

He did not poach for gain, but entirely for sport. Among other hobbies this curious man used to breed and train game-cocks, and engage them in unlawful matches; but he sometimes used these cocks in a very reprehensible way, which might appear incredible, nevertheless it is a fact. The peculiar mode of procedure was for him to go just before dawn to a wood where pheasants were roosting, taking with him one or two cocks, armed with fighting spurs. On placing one of these under a tree, it would immediately crow its usual note of defiance. At once a cock pheasant would answer the bold challenge, coming down from its perch to taunt the impudent intruder into his domain. In these encounters the highly trained and armed bird nearly always made short work of the undisciplined pheasant.

Longfellow's Favorite Gem.

The favorite gem of the American poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow was a hemispherical piece of the deepest shade of purple, which, upon being exhibited in artificial light, glowed like a ruby. St. Valentine wore a ring, so it is said, with Cupid engraved upon the amethyst set. Very appropriate, indeed. Perhaps both St. Valentine and the poet were partial to the gem because each was born in the month of February, for which it is the birthstone.

Theatrical Custom.

"The read shows me to convert for a sourette in this fashion: Miss

UNK. SHE DIDN'T HAFTA SAY A SINGLE WORD."

"MY STARS! SON THAT'S PUTTY NIGH IMPOSSIBLE FOR POLLY!"

Cheap Light.

Science and Invention describes a recent achievement of a French scientist, who has successfully tried out in his own house a scheme for operating electric lights without cost.

Upon his water supply pipe he has fitted a high speed water turbine, which drives a dynamo charging a storage battery. Every time a faucet is turned on in the house the stream of water is put to work at leading the battery which furnishes current for the lights. "It is simply utilizing energy that is ordinarily wasted," says the inventor.

The Young Man's Problem
Thousands of young men are wrestling with a serious problem this spring, an other thousands did in former years. They are old enough to marry, they want to marry, they have girls ready to marry them, but—they cannot figure out the income to provide and furnish a home, even rented quarters. This is by no means an unusual condition, nor a pleasant one to contemplate.

Forty years ago one dollar would buy a neat white shirt with a linen bosom and cuffs. Now many men pay one dollar to have their initials stitched on the sleeve of a shirt. Under normal and wholesome conditions the young man of marriageable age is learning to make his own living under some sort of employment.

Love for some young girls abounds in his life, and there he is. Maybe he has saved a thousand or five thousand dollars well invested. The income from it may be $50 or $400 a year, but it is fine insurance and he shirks—very properly—from using this principal to finance a wedding. What shall he do? His girl lets us imagine, is used to a comfortable living, good clothes and leisure. She shirks from cooking and house-keeping or even flat-keeping. What he does, usually, is to wait with a knavish heart. It is too bad. Everywhere are bright, capable youngsters caught unprepared for their finest experience. Is it not time to teach them to insure their happiness by forethought?

To train them to buy a suburban lot, or a house, as an investment, and pay for it with their savings before love strikes them? There is enough spent for candy, for automobile drives, for theatre-tickets, for fine raiment, for club accounts and for other unnecessary things, by young men between twenty and twenty-five, to put them in a position where marriage will mean no strain on their resources—where their hearts' desire may be fulfilled without fond hopes long deferred.

In cases where this thought comes into play, there is one last resort, one supreme test. It is to put the matter up to the girl, cut out all unnecessary expense, marry poor, work, save, and forego pleasures that cost money until later years. If the girl can not see it this way, if she is unwilling to marry except on a well financed scheme, it will be better to call it off.

The divine emotion is not in her heart and where this is wanting marriage is always a mistake, regardless of other considerations.

A six inch double column Easter ad inserted by a New York Methodist church announced Metropolitan Opera Company stars, an organist-composer, a concert violinist, a trumpet and other features. In the last but one ad, "Dr. Nickel's Easter Sermon" is mentioned. Christ is not mentioned in the advertisement, nor the significance of Easter as a Christian anniversary. The entire display is given to an imposing musical program, which leads to the mild enticement to the relative importance of the various spectacular performances at St. James's Church on the day of days.

The Little Brown Hen. The little brown hen is a great and important asset in the wealth of the country, during her full life, when the weather is pleasant, but grows more and more ill in cold and gloomy weather. Give her sunshine and warmth, and all the industries bird she is, a worthy rival of the comparatively gigantic cow is producing wholesome and nourishing for men.

Like other labor, her strike soon fill her patrons with discontent instead of eggs, and they find much fault with her. But when the warm suns of spring start vegetation to grow, and the worms begin wriggling through the plowed ground, she goes promptly and willingly to work for the breakfast table, and all arise and call her blessed and find less fault with our girl's bills.

Either as an industrious little hen, egg on man to health and strength, or as chicken fried brown with golden gravy, testing the endurance of human digestive equipment, she is a joy, a delight, and an economic treasure.

The Lansing Book. Reviews of former Secretary Lansing's book on the peace negotiations at Paris fully justify the conclusion that the American commissioners, except Mr. Wilson were automaton. All were held in complete subjection to the President, was in fact America's sole representative.

Secretary Lansing did not agree with Mr. Wilson on many points, and it seems a fair conclusion in the light of events since the conference, that the President might have served his country, and certainly would have served his party, better if he had yielded to his Secretary's advice on many matters. History has a way of softening things to definite, undeniably conclusions.

Cheap Light. Science and Invention describes a recent achievement of a French scientist, who has successfully tried out in his own house a scheme for operating electric lights without cost.

Upon his water supply pipe he has fitted a high speed water turbine, which drives a dynamo charging a storage battery. Every time a faucet is turned on in the house the stream of water is put to work at leading the battery which furnishes current for the lights. "It is simply utilizing energy that is ordinarily wasted," says the inventor.

New-York-Day-By-Day

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, Mar. 31—Foreigners newly arriving in the New York harbor are impressed with the clear view of the city's skyline. Not a wisp of smoke is to be seen and it is proverbial that the metropolis is the cleanest city in the world and yet people pay more attention to the bath here than in any other city.

The bath room is the great drawing room in rearing an apartment. The other day I was privileged to inspect a new mansion in the East End. It is said to be one of the finest houses in New York. Our guide showed us all about—the art gallery, the billiard and bowling alley, the saloon, and the bed where after one retires to a glass enclosed sleeping porch.

The greatest pride was in the bath room. It was a sunken tub with steps leading down into it and was seven feet long and three and a half feet wide. At one's elbow in the tub was a water proof telephone; a complete smoking equipment including an electric lighter.
